Join me, and together we can rule the galaxy like father and son. -George Lucas Some fathers and sons are lucky enough to have incredibly close ties. Their relationship transcends the boundaries of being a family ... They're best friends. These are the kind of people who actually enjoy spending time together and are there for themselves through thick and thin. To memorialize their unique connection, they do something extraordinary - they get father-son tattoos. In this way, they always have a reminder of who really has their back and loves them unconditionally. These 30 tattoos are so special, you can't help but admire what these fathers and sons share. Some of these matches, others are similar, but still different, and then some are peddled only on a father or son. It was said that dad is neither an anchor holding us back nor a sail that has rothered us to our distant destination. Rather, father is the main light, which wisdom and encouragement shows us the true way. From promoting our wandering spirit with hobbies to practical truths about women with humorous stories to match. Time spent together sets the stage for sons to follow in their father's footsteps by example. It's those little pieces of wisdom that we highlight along the way from our fathers that lead to a lifelong understanding of the world. Not to mention an unbreakable bond too. You are considering getting a tattoo in memory of your father or your own son. With so many memories that could be captured in ink, it can be hard to come up with a single idea. How do you capture all honest values and virtues in the world, not to mention the good times? To help, I've put together a collection of the top 50 best dad son tattoos for men. You'll discover realistic scenes such as personal conversations about encouragement to time spent along with lines cast over lakes. Not to mention that I also have some incredibly creative ideas like tattoo kids drawings and, of course, traditional designs like son handprinting too. 1. Traditional Black and Gray Father Son Tattoo There is a classic sensitivity about traditional black-gray tattoos that is almost impossible to achieve with vibrant colors. The best of these tattoos evoke memories of a black and white film and old photographs resurrected from dusty boxes and forgotten screens. He's a subdued character who makes this approach perfect for strong tributes to the love between father and son. These are excellent examples of style and show what is possible with black and gray color. Using fully saturated black ink, smooth gray washing shading and negative space to create contrast, these artists are able to capture these emotional moments that emphasize this deep connection. 2. Father Son Silhouette Tattoos Whether using a vibrant color palette or sticking with a more muted, black and gray approach, silhouettes are a powerful tool that tattoo artists can use. These dark images are created by objects and persons are backlit by a powerful source of light, producing an outline without any detail. The effect created can be very dramatic. This technique is great for father/son tattoos thanks to the emotionally charged nature of this content; the unmistakable silhouette of a father and son holding hands in front of the sun set immediately evokes deep feelings of nostalgia and memories of time with the father. 3. Neo Traditional Father Son Tattoos American traditional tattoos are known for their bold contours and limited color palette, and while there are still some in the tattoo community that prefer a clean approach to this style, many artists use American traditional as launch pads to explore more stylized interpretations. While the concept of neo-traditional is notoriously difficult to pin down, these tattoos are some great examples that show how talented artists can create new and exciting designs that use American traditional as a starting point. This approach is perfectly suited for a father's son's tattoo thanks to the ability to bend the rules and create more personal and customized designs. These neo-traditional pieces use vibrant colors and different approaches to shading and line work to create one of the kind of pieces reminiscent of father and son time spent together. 4. Simple Silhouette Father Son Tattoos As with all artistic things tattoo highlight different tastes and sensitivities for different people. Some people like vibrant colors and intricate details to capture their style, while others prefer a more simplified approach. The first batch of silhouette tattoos fell in the first category. These simpler patterns show how strong silhouettes can be. Eschewing the details and multifaceted compositions of other silhouette works, these pieces use fully saturated black ink and limited lines of work perfectly to restore the unmistakable image of father and son, walking hand in hand. These suggestions go to show that sometimes simple tattoos are the best. 5. Top Drawer Father Son Tattoos To be the top drawer to be the best, cream from crops, and these tattoos are just that. These black and gray pieces use different approaches to create excellent tattoos. Some artists use these pieces as an opportunity to flex their portrait muscles, using black and gray ink to create photo-realistic pieces that rival real photography. Other artists create interesting compositions that improve the attractiveness of tattoos. Two of these tattoos use a backdrop and use variations in black and gray tones to create depth in the piece, which is both technically impressive and visually charming. These are great tattoos that perfectly encapsulate the emotions of this strong bond. 6. Kids Art Father Son Tattoos While they certainly aren't all cups of tea, the growing trend in father/son tattoos is for children's drawings to be utilized as designs. For some people there is no design, no matter how technically detailed or expertly used, that could demonstrate their love for their son more than the image that he actually drew. From text like I Love You Dad to the basic dinosaurs many of us drew as children, these tattoos are an extreme way to show the world that your son is your number one priority. Children grow up fast, and this is a permanent way to remember the good old days when life was a little easier. 7. Hands and Feet Father Son Tattoos For most people hands are some of the last parts of the body to get tattooed, and that's because they are almost always on view. However, in memory of a relationship as deep as between father and son, hand tattoos are perfect. Tattoos on the legs are also interesting for their symbolism: many people place important images on their feet to represent the fact that these parts of their lives serve as their anchor.
